

The difference between a cynic and a critic is that a cynic merely scoffs while the critic speaks out because he believes there is a better standard.

Which is by way of introducing today's piece on the subject of the gentlemen who are willing, even eager, to write you letters — for a fee — forecasting what is going to occur next in the stock market.

Every once in a while some of my friends come up nicely hooked by one of these fancy gentry, having subscribed to his weekly or monthly Newsletter in the fond hope that it will make money for him — the subscriber, that is. For the writer it is obviously coin in the till.

But the very principle on which these "experts" operate — that they can tell other folks how to make money buying and selling stocks, or running your business or mine — jars my sense of integrity and truth.

There is a way of telling in advance how the stock market is going to jump — but it isn't learned from Newsletters. The way to find out about it — if you could, but you can't — would be to get hold of the business managers who make up the operating work-sheets which tell how trade and manufacturing are getting along from month to month, which will be reflected in the annual earnings statements, which will eventually control prices on the stock exchange.

But getting back to the subject of these "experts by mail" I find another man is no less doubtful than myself. William Feather of Imperial Type Metal magazine has a couple of paragraphs which reinforce my critical position. Says he:

"Many advisers conduct what is presumably a lucrative business by printing weekly or occasional letters which are sold on a yearly basis for as much as $100 a year and as little as $10 a year. These experts tell their customers when to sell and buy, and what to sell and buy. By referring to past advice they can prove (or seem to prove) that anyone following their instructions could have run $1,000 up to $100,000 in the last dozen years or less."

"One wonders of course why these successful speculators are so seldom, if ever, named. What about the professional advisers themselves?"

Their credit rating is good, but not spectacular. They live modestly, occupying small houses or apartments. There was nothing to indicate that they were more prosperous or had more savings than the average small business man.

"Why, with 64 billion dollars to nibble at, do they fare so ill? Do their customers fare better?"

Lawmen Stirred About End to Foreign Aid

Washington, June 10 (AP)—President Truman's indication that the need for aid to Western Europe won't end with the Marshall plan in 1952 stirred bipartisan criticism in congress today.

While the President's asserted in a Columbia, Mo., address that this country can't close out its "vital national interest, in a healthy world economy" found acceptance among many lawmakers, they didn't agree among themselves how to maintain it.

Senator Wherry of Nebraska, the GOP floor leader, blasted at Mr. Truman's remarks as an indication that the administration intends to come up with a new European recovery program by another name.

"Paul Hoffman has said there are absolutely no plans to continue the economic cooperation administration beyond 1952 and now the President comes along and contradicts him," Wherry told a reporter.

"I'm convinced we are never going to get those European countries off the American taxpayers back as long as this administration is in power."

Senator George (D-Ga.), a member of the senate foreign relations committee, said in a separate interview that he, for one, is going to insist that ECA close up shop in 1952.

"I think we would be doing Western Europe a disservice to encourage the hope that this country can continue Marshall plan aid," George said.

"It will be time enough when we know the circumstances and the conditions to determine whether we will have to give them additional aid."

George agreed with the President, however, that the United States can't pull out and let the rest of the anti-Communist world shift for itself.

Senator Sparkman (D-Ala.) said he is convinced that by 1952 some of the Marshall plan countries will be able to stand on their own feet, without help from this country.

But he added that several of them still will be faced with a dollar gap between their exports and imports for which they may need assistance.

Homemakers Elect New Officers

Hot Springs, June 9 (AP)—Arkansas Future Homemakers of America elected new officers yesterday afternoon to end a week-long leadership training camp at Couchdale on Lake Catherine near here.

They are: president, Mona McGuire of Foreman; first vice president, Betty Grace Moore, Marshall; second vice president, Helen Deckleman, Fountain Hill; third vice president, Sally Long, Reector; secretary, Libby Harris, De Light; treasurer, Bobbie Byrd, Leachville; historian, Betty Brooks, Bauxite; and reporter, Pebbie Ann Mott, Havana.

Four hundred girls, representing 283 FHA chapters in the state, attended.

Life Getting Complex for Jap Reds

Tokyo, June 10 (AP)—Life grew increasingly complex today for Japan's Communists, already staggered by two purges of their top strategists.

On one side, the Chinese Red Peiping radio — a link in the line to Moscow — urged them to "deal effective counterblows" to the purges ordered by General MacArthur.

On the other side, the government cracked down wherever the Communists raised their voices in public criticism of the U. S. occupation. Cabinet members and both rural and Tokyo police officials met with Premier Shigeru Yoshida to consider stronger measures.

Meanwhile, a new plot against MacArthur's life — the second in 10 days — was reported and airily brushed aside by key American officials. They called it another "fake" — like the last.

Informants said a letter was intercepted two days ago, mentioning vaguely a plan to kill the supreme commander. The address was false and the author remained a mystery.

"Nobody at headquarters takes it seriously," an official said, "somebody is crying wolf."

A Japanese arrested June 1 after babbling details of an alleged plot to kill MacArthur has been sent to a mental hospital.

The Peiping radio, monitored here, called MacArthur's purge order of all 24 politburo members and 17 editors of the party newspaper Red Flag "as absurd as it is reactionary." It added:

"Unless the Japanese people deal effective counterblows, they will once more be driven along the path of destruction by Japans' modern Tojo — MacArthur."

Doubtful the Ostrich Will Run the Hen Out of Business in the Egg Department

New York — (AP) — What would you do if you opened your door and a man handed you an ostrich egg?

And the egg had been laid, not by just an ordinary neck-in-the-sand ostrich, but by a real racing ostrich?

This interesting experience befell Elizabeth Baker the other day. She answered a door knock, and a fellow said, "Here, lady," handed her a box, and galumphed back down the stairs.

Miss Baker, a pretty blonde from Larned, Kas., noted that the mysterious box was insured for $45. Opening it she saw, nestling in a well-padded bed — a big white five-pound egg.

Then along came a letter from Jim Casper's alligator and ostrich farm near St. Augustine, Fla., advising Miss Baker they had shipped her "an egg laid by one of our fastest racing ostriches."

Elizabeth and her young roommate, Phyllis Nelson of Willmar, Minn., talked the old gift over. They decided that even if they hatched the egg in their small apartment in old Chelsea they couldn't race the ostrich at any New York track, which has a prestige in favor of horses.

Then they came across this paragraph in the letter from the casper farm:

"The egg will furnish an omelet serving for 20 people. They are highly prized by gourmets."

"Let's invite some friends in and see if they'll help us eat it," said Elizabeth.

This is how I came to attend what is probably the first cocktail party for an ostrich egg ever held in Manhattan.

There were a dozen of us. And we were all a bit nervous. The egg was the coolest of all. It had just been taken out of a refrigerator.

Swathed in black velvet and surrounded with spring flowers, it drew every eye to its perch on a small table in the center of the living room.

In about an hour our courage was up to the point where we were ready to open the egg. No one volunteered to break it — for fear of the splash. Bert Bandt, war time photographer, finally solved the problem by boring a hole in each end of the egg with a pair of scissors. It took ten minutes for the contents to drip out.

On guest task a long look at the pan full of raw egg, swallowed quietly and recalled he was late to another engagement. He left.

The girls meanwhile had done a little research in how to cook ostrich eggs. They are dry, and you have to mix them with beer or cream. The vote to add cream rather than beer was unanimous, so a pint of light cream was stirred into the egg.

Phyllis and Elizabeth began cooking batches of omelet in relays. When the first servings were brought in on toast, another guest suddenly remembered he, too, had an appointment elsewhere.

The remaining two gamely went to work on the omelet. And everybody, after a tentative taste, called for more. The ostrich omelet, was lighter, flakier and more delicate-flavored than any chicken egg.

But it is doubtful if the ostrich will soon put the nation's hens out of work.

The price for a dozen ostrich eggs? About $120.

Nostradamus predicted correctly in his almanac the death of France's Henry II, causing the successor king, Henry III, to forbid political prognostications.

World's Prized Gorilla Is Seriously Ill

Chicago, June 10 (AP)—Bushman, a massive, ugly-faced gorilla who is regarded as the world's prized zoo animal and probably has more fans than a movie star, is grievously ill.

The famed ape, Chicago's biggest single attraction for some 20 years, was reported suffering from the combined effects of arthritis, heart disease and old age.

He might die in the next five minutes or he may live a year," said Dr. Wesley Young, managing director of the anti-cruelty society and form many years head veterinarian at the Lincoln park zoo.

The veterinarians attending Bushman diagnosed his illness from a distance. They said that even in his weakened condition it would be impossible to enter Bushman's cage to examine him.

No one has entered the huge gorilla's cage since 1936. The ban was ordered after Bushman, then weighing 150 pounds, pulled his 185-pound trainer down a flight of stairs.

Bushman is 22 years old and said to be the oldest gorilla in captivity. He weighs 550 pounds and is 6 feet, two inches tall. The strength of his hands is immense, veterinarians said, and, even if he were unconscious his reflexes might seriously injure a man.

The veterinarians are giving him digitalis—a heart stimulant—in his food. But he is not getting his normal diet of 20 pounds of food and three quarts of milk. It has been reduced to some fruit and milk. Guards maintained a 24-hour vigil near the big ape's cage.

Rice States Protest Plan to Eliminate Tariff

Washington, June 10 (AP)—Rice state congressmen have formally protested a proposal to eliminate tariff preferences for Cuban sugar.

The reciprocity information committee which is to make recommendations for tariff adjustments to be considered at a Torquay, England, conference this fall, received the protest.

A delegation appeared before the committee to argue that if the Cuban sugar tariff preference is removed, Cuba is likely to retaliate by reeliminating a preferential tariff rate on U. S. rice.

The group included Reps. Norrell and Gathings of Arkansas.

Remington to Quit Post, Try to Clear Name

Washington, June 10 (AP)—William W. Remington will quit his $10,000-a-year commerce department job Monday as he can devote his time to trying to prove that "I have never been a member of the Communist party."

The 32-year-old wartime naval intelligence lieutenant is to appear in federal court in New York Tuesday to answer an indictment charging he lied when he said he had never been a Communist. It is expected to be months before his trial actually starts.

The department economist notified Secretary of Commerce Sawyer by letter yesterday he had reconsidered an earlier refusal to resign at Sawyer's request, and would quit "at the close of business Monday."

Sawyer, who had gone to his home in Cincinnati earlier in the day, told aides by telephone he would not comment.

But other commerce officials said the resignation will end department proceedings to remove Remington on "maladministration" charges which Sawyer himself has said were "in no way intended to reflect" on Remington's loyalty.

Similar proceedings have been started against another $10,000-a-year official of the department office of international trade, Michael H. Lee.

Lee, who also has refused to quit, said in a statement yesterday that the department was hindering his chance to clear his name, since a current investigation of his loyalty presumably would be dropped if he left Lee has been accused in congress of being a poor security risk.

Test Vote on Rent Control Set Monday

Washington, June 10 (AP)—A weary senate agreed early today to a test vote Monday on rent controls, after Senator Cain (R-Wash.) had pushed the chamber to a marathon session with a filibuster lasting 12 hours.

The agreement which brought adjournment at 2:40 a. m. (ST) was for a vote at 11 a. m. Monday on a motion by Republican leader Wherry of Nebraska to send the bill back to the banking committee — a move which, if successful, almost certainly would kill the measure.

When the lawmakers finally closed up shop, they had been at work for 18 hours and 40 minutes — one of the longest sessions in recent years.

The decision to use Wherry's motion for the bill's first test represented something of a setback for Democratic leader Lucas of Illinois. He had kept the senate in continuous session in the hope of getting an agreement to vote on the bill itself.

However, Democratic leaders said later they felt they had enough votes to beat back the Wherry move in time to get a final vote on passage of the bill Monday.

The measure would continue federal rent controls for six months beyond the present June 30 expiration date. Local communities could get another half year of ceilings by asking for them.

A similar bill is pending before the house, which had cancelled its original plans to vote on the measure this week at the urging of Lucas.

Opponents of the bill, led by Cain, had hoped to delay a Senate vote until the house acted, in belief that the measure would fare so well on that side of the capitol.

With that presumably in mind, Cain started his delaying tactics on Wednesday. On Thursday, senate took time out for a row through some 200 minor bills, under an agreement which kept Washington senator regaining floor yesterday.

Forest Fire Threatens Stored Gas

Lewisport, N.D., June 10 (UP)—A forest fire threatened today to explode 2,000,000 gallons of stored gasoline and blast this village of 1,500.

A three-mile wall of flame, fanned by 15-mile-an-hour breeze rolled toward Lewisport where Imperial Oil officials said 2,000,000 gallons of high-octane aviation gasoline was stored.

Planes and ships sped here with emergency fire-fighting supplies and were ordered to stand by for possible mass evacuation.

All women, children and elderly persons were told to pack and be ready to leave at a moment's notice. Every able-bodied man in the area joined forest rangers and woodsmen on firefighting duty.

At St. Johns, Newfoundland's provincial capital, deputy welfare Minister Frederick Rowe said his department was preparing to send food here if evacuation to other coastal points became necessary.

The fire raged to within 2-1/2 miles of the fuel tanks last night before gusty winds that reached 25 to 30 miles an hour slackened. Early today, the dominion public weather office clocked winds at 15 miles an hour.

Forecasters said the wind might die out more, but they warned that if it did, there still would be danger from breezes sucked into the fire area by the flames. Then "there would be no telling which way they would blow—toward or away from the tanks," one forecaster said.

Says Lawyer Guild Trying to Ruin FBI

Washington, June 10—(UP)—Director J. Edgar Hoover has publicly nailed the campaign of the communist-infiltrated National Lawyers guild to destroy the FBI.

In testimony last February before a house committee now made public, Hoover said the lawyers guild had been campaigning to "weaken" and "hamper" the FBI. More specifically, the guild wants Hoover fired.

Hoover said the campaign against him and the FBI began 10 years ago. He and others call the guild a communist front. Earl Browder, one time headman here of the Communist party, calls it a communist transmission belt. It has an almost perfect record of supporting the Communist party line.

Hoover has his own FBI agents inside the Communist party. He steadily is bringing about arrest and conviction of communist agents, spies and saboteurs.

American communists regard daisies, and white tapers in crystal candleholders. Places were marked with miniature handmade dancing dolls, dressed in green tulle skirts.

Mr. Hamilton Hannegan, past president, introduced the president for the coming year, Mrs. LaMar Cox. Mrs. Cox appointed committees for the year, and other important business was taken up at this time.

Mrs. John Harrie led the group in square dancing, with Mrs. R. E. Jackson, chairman of the entertainment committee in charge of the different groups.

There were 18 members, and two guests, Mrs. Basil York, and Mrs. Tom Logan present for the meeting.

Judy Watkins Hostess to Melody Maids

The Melody Maids met Friday afternoon in the home of Miss Judy Watkins, with the vice-president, Ann Adams, presiding during the business session. Miss Janet McKenzie, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting.

It was announced that the next meeting would be held at the home of Miss Mary Raines Lewis, Friday afternoon, June 16.

The hostess served a dessert course to 12 members.

XXIV
Lieutenant McGANN took another sip of coffee before he resumed the explanations.

"Why did they nickname that horrible little man 'Lofty'?" Gloria asked, still holding Miltiades' hand.

"For the same reason that you call a big man 'Tiny.' Because he was small," the lieutenant explained.

"All the time I thought he was Hansen, because Hansen was tall," Gloria said, glancing at Hansen who smiled proudly.

"We couldn't disillusion you because Hansen—you knew him as Reuben, the doorman—was too valuable to us. He'd wormed his way into the Benoni gang without their knowing he was a federal officer."

"A federal officer!" Gloria blushed. She hadn't been very bright. That was why Hansen—Reuben—had been following her tonight. He thought the pie might have heroin in it, or that Gloria was carrying heroin around. Maybe he thought Gloria was another Sal! Probably it had been Hansen's badge that had made Ella Mae, the beauty operator, scream. Ella Mae looked pretty shady herself.

But Gloria consoled herself in the thought that both she and Hansen had mixed things up as thoroughly as the ingredients for a pie, yet somehow they had come out right. The whole recipe emerged as something to be proud of. It just went to show what Gloria had suspected, that a real cook didn't follow the rules in the cookbook, but tasted, experimented for herself. . . as Gloria had experimented with death while Lofty held his gun on her.

She murmured, "Why did Lofty follow me around so?" She unclasped Miltiades' hand.

"He suspected that you knew either where the necklace was or where the Benonis were hiding,"

Lieutenant McGANN pointed out. "And he was afraid you'd learn well, look."

He drew his handkerchief from his pocket, unfolded it carefully, and the necklace lying there looked like a stage prop or something the Medicis might have worn, with its massive setting, its enormous green stones.

The lieutenant pushed at the clasp, which was as big as a pill box, and something white and powdery fell into his hand.

"Heroin," he said grimly. "There's room to store the stuff under every gem."

"You mean Alida Strong, the stage star?" Gloria gasped but McGANN shook his head.

"We don't know yet, frankly. Maybe Sal just used the necklace for a hiding place, safe because it was so improbable, and she always had access to her sister's dressing room."

He put the necklace carefully away and Gloria was glad to see the end of the evil thing that had cost so many lives.

The lieutenant murmured, "Of course it was Sal who jetisoned dope into your sugar jar at Jones' Beach. She saw Hansen and got scared."

"SUPPOSE we'd eaten some of it!" Gloria shivered. "It's a good thing you got arrested, Miltiades, so the police got it."

"Yeah, I made a swell goat," Miltiades said bitterly.

He was still worrying about his job. But surely the office wouldn't fire an innocent man.

"It was what you said about Sal and Lofty quarreling that gave us our first real clue," McGANN told Gloria. She remembered the scene—on the street when she was talking to Sammy the newsboy. She must have Miltiades buy a new gun for Sammy's father.

"Any time you want a job with the Brooklyn police, let me know," McGANN was saying.

Hansen spoke now for the first time: "Just one thing, Mrs. Brown. What was that poem you shot Lofty Gordon with? It wasn't in my McGuffey's reader."

"It was from 'The Frogs,'" Gloria told him. "Aristophanes wrote it about 400 B.C. It's my favorite Greek drama."

"It ought to run on Broadway," said Hansen. "It's still got what it takes. And so have you, Mrs. Brown."

"THE next thing, they'll be wanting you in the F.B.I.," Miltiades told Gloria bitterly. "It's easy to see who wears the pants in this family. I take a nice safe room in jail while you knock off a public enemy."

"They also serve who only stand and wait out," Gloria giggled, her dimple going through its customary stunt in the corner of her mouth. Suddenly she tensed, began to scream and flung herself frantically into her husband's arms. McGANN whirled nervously, expecting at least to see that Lofty Gordon had broken out of the jail hospital.

"A mouse!" Gloria shrieked. "In the corner."

"Quiet, foolish. He won't hurt you," Miltiades soothed, holding her tightly and quite masterfully. Why, she was actually shaking.

Lieutenant McGANN saw and marveled. She had thrown a pie at a gangster and quoted Greek at a killer. Now she was yelling her head off over a mouse!

Gloria quieted down, lifted her head from her husband's shoulder and winked at the lieutenant before she settled down again on the divan.

"The little spalpeen!" Lieutenant McGANN chuckled to himself. "She'll lead him a merry chase and he'll love it. I always heard that Boston was the Athens of America, but there aren't many girls smart enough to cover up when their brains are showing, like Mulligan."

Probably the Greeks had a name for her.

Course Has Golfers Stymied

BY CARL BIL
Little Rock, June 10 (AP)— Riverdale country club's par of 72 for 6,600 yards still had Arkansas' top golfers baffled today as the state amateur tournament jumped onto the limelight with its first two rounds of match play.

The only shotmaker able to better the card yesterday, professional Curtis Collier of Fort Smith, won the state open championship and a cash prize of $100.

And the only entrant to equal par, Warner Marks of Little Rock, was medalist in the amateur qualifying.

The defending amateur champ, Charlie Woodard of Magnolia, did not have to qualify and he spent the afternoon practicing.

Woodard led off a featured foursome in the first round this morning, tying with Dr. Fred Gordy of Conway, who qualified with a 75.
Playing with them in what promised to be one of the round's most hotly-contested matches were Vincent Allison of Fort Smith, the 1948 titlist, and Little Rock hotshot Ted Darragh.

Marks drew Gordon Ratcliff of Little Rock, who qualified with a 75, as his first opponent.

Collier, state amateur king in 1934 and '35 and open co-champ in 1937, won his title with a sensational, four-under-par final nine.
He was six strokes off the pace starting the final 18, and, as far as he knew, still farther back after needing 38 strokes to negotiate the first half of yesterday's final round. But he fired six threes and parred every hole he didn't birdie coming in to finish with a 70 for the day and a 146 for two days of play.

Nearest to him at the finish were the defending champion, Don Murphy, Texarkana pro, and amateur Steve Creekmore, Jr., Fort Smithian whose father is the only four-time state simon-pure champ, at 148. Murphy pocketed -75; Creekmore won three dozen golf balls.

Pete Fleming, the Hot Springs pro who led the field through the first round with a sub-par 70, blew sky-high to a 79 yesterday and had to settle for fourth place. As he picked up $50.

Another disappointment was the 80 awarded by Gene Keeney, Texar-kana's leading amateur. It displaced him as the top amateur in the open and wasn't good enough to squeeze him into the championship flight of the amateur.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

Ardmore, Pa., June 10 (AP)— There's an old stone quarry which adds considerably to the hazards on the back nine at the Merion Golf club, but the U. S. G. A. must think it's a gold mine. It was in anticipation of a record "gate" that officials increased the open prize money to $15,000, besides commemorating the 50th open, and it looks like they'll get it. Attendance for the first two days was estimated at 17,000—certainly there were a lot of people on the compact course. The U. S. G. A. attendance record—35,450, was set here at Bobby Jones' "grand slam" amateur in 1930 and the biggest net receipts also were recorded at this course. Fans paid $53.319 to see Bobby and the old open championship record, also set here, in 1934, lasted until the 1948 crowd piled out at Cleveland's Canterbury club for a double playoff tournament.

Weak End Notes
The Detroit Tigers are so hot after Gene Connelly, Washington State's six-foot-eight itcher who'll be on display in the NCAA baseball playoffs next week, that a scout flew to Pullman, Wash., and stayed there two weeks. He's drawn at least eight scouts at each of his recent games which is more spectators than some college ball teams draw. Chicago's Scotty Pesenden, whose presence is missed at the open, describes his recent operation: "They cut a golf ball out of my arm." Barbara Amos Stage, granddaughter of Amos Alonzo, will represent Susquehanna U. in the Women's Eastern Intercollegiate Tennis tournament starting today. Golf fans noting Lee Mackey's "unequaled" blow-up from 64 Thursday to 81
Friday—overlooked that Al Borsch skyrocketed just as far—67 to 84—
Guess they gave Al the Brosch-off.

Mainly Main Line Stuff
Seems the old pros weren't kidding when they said unemployed Lee Mackey had better get a job
the night he made that opening round 64. They've seen seemingly nervous guys blow up before. . .
Mackey had the real old confession. . . Going off the first tee yes-
